What you are getting out of your experience in Montreal

Courses

BUSA356: Management in Global Context

Contemporary issues in international management illustrate unique challenges faced in IB, including legal and political foundations of international management, cross-cultural awareness, global mindset, global leadership, and building effective international workforce and operations.

ORGB380: Cross-Cultural Management

This course addresses the dilemmas and opportunities managers experience in international, multicultural environments – especially those related to Brazil and Latin American markets. Development of conceptual knowledge and behavioral skills (e.g. bridging skills, communication, tolerance of ambiguity, cognitive complexity) relevant to the interaction of different cultures in business and organizational settings, using several methods including research, case studies and experiential learning.
